California native Louise Wu wins 22nd Annual Miss Asian America Pageant; vows to bring attention to global crises and natural disasters in coming year.

24-year old Louise Wu won the title of Miss Asian America on Saturday, August 11, 2007 at the Palace of Fine Arts Theatre in San Francisco. The Miss Asian America Pageant, now in its 22nd year is the largest Asian America pageant in the United States and one of the largest Asian American organizations in the United States.

Of the twenty-one contestants from all over the United States, Louise Wu represented the Chinese American community of California and competed with the platform of promoting global charity, especially with the American Red Cross. The President of the Miss Asian America Organization and former Miss Chinatown USA Rose Chung said, "Louise epitomizes the Asian American community in her intelligence, cultural awareness, and her dedication to community. She has a global outlook and she will represent our nation's 13 million Asian Americans well."

Joining Louise in the 2007 court are 1st Runner Up and Miss Asian California, Tiffani Mah, 2nd Runner Up Ayushka Sing Gharib, and 3rd Runner Up and Miss Asian San Francisco Amy Chu. They will be joined by Miss Photogenic, Amy Ng of Seattle, Washington; Miss Popularity, Seayoon Jeong of Atlanta, Georgia; Miss Scholastic Achievement, Ilyssa Lu of Boston, Massachusetts; Miss Community Service Aprileen Coh; Miss Talent, Anna Lisa Matias; and Vi Ngo, our Miss Congeniality.
